

ENVIRONMENTAL PRESENTATIONS

October 19, 2017, 2:00 pm Convent Community Room by Artz Laughlin, a climate-change activist and speaker at various state, national and international conferences. Listen to his keynote address in Aspen Colorado for the American Renewable Energy Day, "2020 or Bust." <https://vimeo.com/224362745>
For the past three years, all of Laughlin's efforts have been focused on one singular commitment: to end the global climate crisis through citizen engagement and collective action. As a pioneer in making the climate crisis and the ending of it accessible to ordinary people, Laughlin has distinguished himself as a recognized world leader and radical change agent, putting the power to solve humanity's most urgent problem in the hands of civil society.

November 9, 2017, 6:30 pm Convent Community Room by S. Marya Grathwohl, OSF

S. Marya has worked tirelessly to encourage Earth Care through her Center in Montana, Earth Hope. Visit her website, www.earthhope.org to learn about her programs. In this presentation, S. Marya will highlight the global warming crisis by offering background information and will explain a solution that our country can take to put a real price tag on all the carbon pollution which is fueling climate change. S. Marya trained with Al Gore to present the scientific data from Gore's world-wide movement, Climate Reality, and is an active member in Citizens Climate Lobby, whose members are lobbying US lawmakers—Republicans and Democrats—to come together to pass a law that would put a fee on carbon use and offer incentives to citizens to pay for the additional cost such a fee would impose on businesses.

A free-will offering is suggested to support these out-of-town speakers in their climate change activities.
